

GAIL KISSINGER/CONTRIBUTOR

Ground-breaking project

There was a ground-breaking ceremony for the construction of the Peace Pole Project for Greater Anderson Promotes Peace Aug. 25 at Beech Acres Park. Participating were Mike Krebs; Molly McClure, executive director of Anderson Township Park District; Josh McDonough; Ken Kushner, operations director of the Anderson Township Park District; Helen Armstrong, corresponding secretary for Greater Anderson Promotes Peace; Andrew Meyers; Dale Bartholomew, park commissioner; Sue Goldberg, co-director, GAPP; Louise Lawarre, executive director, GAPP; Biz Martella, park district; Rev. Bill Gupton, Heritage Universalist Unitarian Church and Project Director; and David Vogel of David Vogel Landscape. A seven-piece granite sculpture, created by artist Joel Selmeier and selected by residents through popular vote, will stand as a symbol of the richness that diversity brings to community life. The community has contributed more than $41,000 toward the project.