

Park District honored

ANDERSON TWP. – The Anderson Park District received two honors Feb. 9 at the Ohio Parks and Recreation Association's annual Education Conference. The OPRA Award of Excellence was given to both the Kellogg Park Dog Field and the re-development of Beech Acres Park within their individual categories.

Both projects were judged based on community activation, resources used, overall benefits and the entire project. Amy Mollette, Anderson Park District communications director said she believes the district received these awards based on the fact that both parks are a terrific testament to what can be accomplished through partnerships and cost-saving strategies.
